When American student John F. Kennedy met Parisian aristocrat Albert Fouquet in the French Riviera, not only was he charmed by the man, he was also intrigued by his hand-crafted scent. Upon his return to the US, JFK made a quirky request for eight samples—"and if your production allows, another one for Bob". Of course, he was speaking of his brother, Bobby Kennedy. Today, "Eight & Bob" continues to be one of the most exclusive colognes, preferred by the world's most classic men.
